The Review of Reviews.

Many other publications are desirable, and you may prefer lists of that fiction and art publication, but "Review of Reviews" is necessary. Substantial American men and women are going to keep up with the times and they are going to take the shortest road to get the news. The Review of Reviews gives the best that is in all the published pictures, documents giving the most that is in all the daily and informing articles almost as fresh and full of news, interpretation of the public men, events and issues of the month, in

"And you would find larger farms than, too, farmers perhaps keeping many cows and selling the bulk of their milk to a creamery, still continuing to make the butter that they needed for themselves and making it as they have always done, in a hand churn.

"And such churns are sold to people living in suburban or country homes and keeping cows, who make their own butter because they prefer to, anyway, and they are bought by various people, everywhere, who want sweet, or unsalted, butter, and make it for themselves in hand churns.

WOMAN'S DAMAGING VANITY
Love of Fine Appearance Sometimes Leads to Painful Self-Sacrifice.

When the Leicester woman was visiting some time ago, her relatives published a detailed description of her contained this sentence: "Small toes of each foot missing." As it was very unlikely that both toes had been amputated by accident, some one asked the woman's mother to account for the missing toes. After a gallant effort to evade the question, the old lady reluctantly confessed that her daughter had had her toes severed to enable her to wear very small shoes!

It is well known that hundreds of women suffer torture every week by the loss of the toes that will wear high-heeled shoes, or that will meet the exigencies, or having almost invisible heels, plucked from their fair faces.

In most lonely districts—such as the parishes of the Irish and Scottish constabthe women have a weakness for vivid colors. A person in little St.

Kilda tells of a servant-maid of his a native of the island—who asked his permission to take a brightly-colored Persian hearthrug to church—to use as a shawl. Thinking the request was merely a crude joke, he laughingly assented. To his astonishment, he had held her, a little later, walking proudly down the aisle of the church with the rainbow-colored rug about her shoulders, admired and envied by the feminine portion of the congregation at least.

Diving for a Wife.
In many of the Greek islands diving for sponges forms a considerable part of the occupation of the inhabitants. The natives make it a trade to gather the sponges, and their income from this source is far from contemptible. In some of the islands a girl is not permitted to marry until she has brought up a certain number of sponges, and given proof of her skill by taking them from a certain depth. But in some of the islands this custom is reversed. The father of a marriageable daughter bestows her on the best diver among her natives. The Quaint Island, off which the steamer Jeathou founded, is by far the smallest of the Channel Islands, and boasts the distinction of being the smallest inhabited island in Europe, having, indeed, only one dwelling house upon it. It has a population of about seven souls. It has no road or pathway or post, and is smaller than the largest of the population of the Channel Islands, having gone into Guernsey market with the butter and cream from the Jeathou cows. Cow-Milking Record.

In a paper read before a meeting of sanitary inspectors at Sheffield, Mr. J. S. Lloyd, F. R. C. V. S., advocates the milking of cows by machine. He described one or two types of apparatus in use, and mentioned that by means of them a girl of 17, in Glasgow, milked 84 cows in an hour and a quarter, with the assistance of a boy.

Elastic Inexpensive Durable.

This paint is the old original roof and iron paint placed on the market by us many years ago. It is the pioneer of roof paints, and we are the parents of the roofing paint industry in this country. Through all these years this paint has sold in greater quantities each season, despite the fact that hundreds of imitations, represented to be "Just as good" have flooded the country with advertising similar to ours in an attempt to divert our trade.

For use on Roofs, Iron or Metal Buildings, or any surface where a thoroughly good paint is required, Hascall's Carbon Paint is unequalled, as time and experience and thousands of imitations prove.

San Francisco's Early Days

When Captain Montgomery, on July 6, 1794, raised the American flag on the heights of Yerba Buena at the Golden Gate, this spot was nothing but a poor village of about 200 inhabitants, writes Louis Wagner in a very interesting article published in the Illustrated Home Journal. But even then it was quite cosmopolitan—its population was made up of Spaniards, Mexicans, Germans, Swiss, Englishmen, Scots, Irish, Swedes, Danes, Indians and Kanakas.

Undoubtedly the precious yellow metal discovered in the mountains, and the picturesque prospect of the village on the beautiful bay drew little of the insatiable, feverish thirst for gold. They rather cast their eyes upon the sea day after day. Every morning at sunrise some of them would climb upon the highest hill, which was soon called "Telegraph Hill," and glass in hand they would search the great expanse of the ocean for vessels bringing commerce and newcomers. The white sails and the long-drawn cloud of smoke could be seen from this high viewpoint in the far distance, and thus the arrival of a ship could readily be announced to the whole population in due time. And then the whole village assembled at the landing place.

It was during the last days of that July month, when a messenger hurriedly came down from his elevated point of observation and announced to the dwellers in the huts and houses the cheerful news of the first American ship, full of men, women and children, entering the Golden Gate, the lovely light. That ship was the "Brooklyn" of New York, bringing a new class of people to this distant shore. The Spaniards and the colony of English, French, Swiss and Germans, with somewhat mixed feelings, this increase in the population of Yerba Buena was received by the mixed assembly of pioneers. But these movements brought money, tools, implements of various kinds and a printing press. Some of them soon got into an altercation with the very worldly bishop, and before long the majority of the flock abandoned the doctrines of Brigham Young. These movements brought the first prayer meeting into the quiet village at the Golden Gate, and they like-wise introduced the first jury trial, and the same year that had been used in New York to print the organ of the sect, called "The People," in January of the following year stood in line here, on the Western shore, to print the first newspaper of the Pacific coast, the "California Star," which name was soon changed to that of "The Alta California."

At the same time the name of Yerba Buena—"good grass"—disappeared officially. The picturesque grassy coast

Francisco and all the mining camps, in whose company a man had to take his life into his own hands, goes without saying. Gamblers and hazardous men of all sorts, whose only aim was to get rich quick, abounded in numbers. They were desperate and sensitive characters. If, at times, they did show a certain fairness, even admirable honesty—especially in paying their debts—they were nevertheless bent upon cheating and violence.

San Francisco, at this period, was a most unattractive place in its exterior appearance. The houses had been erected without plan and style, all low, irregular huts and shops of all possible shapes and forms, offensive to the eye, and just so, many blots upon the picturesque landscape.

San Francisco's first newspaper office.

On the bank "Palo Alto," as early as 1818, the first three Chinese, two men and a woman, came to San Francisco from Hongkong, and in February 1850, the Mongolians in the city numbered 787. And after that they began to arrive in swarms, in ships, and on foot, and they brought relief in clearing the city of its old slums and unsightly buildings, making room for more solid structures and for wider, straighter and better streets. The old City Hotel, the oldest tavern of the place, a building with a mighty tower, the whole Plaza, the office of the "Alta California," the old Custom House, the Postoffice, and numerous historic huts were destroyed.

POLITICAL COMMENT

The Republicans Do Business.
The passage of the free alcohol bill by the Senate shows that that body knows what the people want, and will try to give it to them. Congress had previously passed the statehood and the railway rate-regulation bills. Both excited a great deal of discussion in Congress and the press. The people favored each measure. Both are in conference now, and final action will soon be had and the bills will be sent to the President. The free alcohol bill will not arouse much of a contest between the House and Senate. The bill which has just passed the latter body differs in only a few particulars from the measure which the former dealt with. These differences are on points which are not material. An agreement will quickly be had, and the alcohol used in the arts and industries will be free of taxation after Jan. 1, 1907.

Here are three very important measures which will soon go on the statute book. They formed an essential part of the Republican program of legislation for this session. These measures pleased the country so well that but little Democratic opposition could be mustered against any of them except one. The free alcohol bill went through the House by a vote of 222 to 7, and has passed the Senate without a division. By a virtually unanimous vote the ratification bill went through each chamber. The Democrats made a good deal of opposition to the statehood bill, but it was not enough to prevent its passage. If it can't get it at the expense of the cattle raisers, it proposes to get it at the expense of the consumer. But the consumer need not worry. He will find that competition will give him his shoes as cheaply as ever.

Panama Supplies.
The question of whether Secretary Taft shall buy supplies and material for the Panama Canal construction abroad or at home arises again, and will continue to arise, probably, until some action on the matter is taken by Congress. The principles involved are easily stated.

Given an amount of money to spend in a year, Mr. Taft, from the point of view of the administrator seeking to do the most for the least cost, is naturally anxious to go into the cheapest market for his supplies, regardless of other considerations. Any one can appreciate that point of view of the administrator aiming to make a record both for the kind of work he does and the bills he incurs in its performance.

But there is another consideration of wider scope and of larger concern to the American people. It is as to whether they themselves are better off under the policy of buying the material in the foreign markets or buying it at home. Whether the price is cheaper or dearer, the bills are paid by the American people. To state the case, let us say that it should cost $500,000,000 to build the canal with Secretary Taft buying material at home, it would cost $475,000,000, or $25,000,000, or $25,000,000, if you please, to build it. If he should buy abroad, he would have to do the work, the money would go back to the very people the citizens of the United States—who are paying for the construction. A hundred millions more might be spent on the actual building of the canal, but every cent expended would remain in the pockets of those paying the bills—the American people. To the people, taken as a whole, the work would not have cost a penny in the sense of money paid out and gone, for it all would come back in the process of giving business to American industries and employment to American wage-earners. The money here before the construction to pay for the work would still be here after it was done and the bills satisfied.

On the other hand, if the four hundred millions were paid out abroad they would come out of the pockets of the American people and they would go into and stay in the pockets of foreigners, giving business to industries and employment to wage-earners abroad. The money would be here before it would be gone after the work. The canal might have cost, in actual dollars used, one hundred millions less, but with the expenditures lodged in other lands, instead of at home, this country, in obtaining the canal, would have definitely and finally parted with four hundred million dollars, as against, in the other case, not a single penny.

The proposition is very clear. Its solution should be simple. That solution, it will seem to the American people, who are paying the bills, should be found by Congress with an eye to providing that the supplies and material for the Panama Canal should come from the United States.—New York Press.

Should Secure a New Chairman.
We are grateful to see that the platform of the Kansas-Republican convention which renominated Gov. Hoch re-affirms the party's pride in the "history and achievements of the national organization and adherence to its principles," and contains a plank commending the protective policy, under which it declares that "the country has vaulted to the front rank among the nations in finance, in manufactures, in material development, and general prosperity." But how shall we, as good Republicans, reconcile this declaration with the frantic charge of the conservative chairman that "the greatest robber in this country to-day is the great Steel Trust, made possible by an unreasonable protective tariff?" That tariff has brought the country to a state of unparalleled prosperity, and if the Steel Trust prospers, so do the Steel Trust employees; so do the Kansas farmers, who are buying automobiles and dropping the word "motor" from their dictionaries.

The reasonable and conservative reason, with which Mr. Stubbins wished the convention to bolster up his denunciation remarks were not paired; the man at this for the Republican party at Kansas to do would seem to be to secure a new chairman for its State Central Committee, and leave Mr. Stubbins free to go on the stump for the free traders.—Izelle's Weekly.

Club Delegates Set Them Right on Suffrage Officers Elected.
Man, his points, good and bad, came in for a share of comment at Wednesday's session of the General Federation of Women's Club in St. Paul. Woman's suffrage had the call and Mrs. Mary G. Andrews of Omaha, Neb., took a fling at men, referring to them as selfish because of their failure to extend the general franchise to women. This declaration brought Mrs. Robert Hall Willes of Chicago to her feet with this defense of men:

"The American man is the most unselfish man in the world. He is much more unselfish than the American woman. Property rights are just as safe toward women as toward men, and the delegate from Nebraska is wrong when she says the men want to keep the ballot to themselves, through selfish motives, or because they do not want the women to have property rights. Woman's suffrage is much more favorable legislation than they could have if they were to vote. We cannot have it go out from here that we believe men are selfish."

This was a fine one for the delegate from Nebraska, who qualified her previous remarks. She squared herself:

"I love all men. I idolize man; he is an adorable creature. I wouldn't have that impression go out from here for anything. I'm not talking about the good men we all love; I referred only to the politician."

Our National Drink Bill.
Statistics published by the American Grocer, drawn from the internal revenue records, show that since 1901 the cost of stimulating beverages consumed in this country has risen from $1,472,142,486 to $1,448,708,307 in 1902, or a gain of 21.3 per cent. During the same period the population increased from 77,447,000 to 83,143,000, or a gain of 7.3 per cent. These figures include tea and coffee. In other words our drink bill is one-fourth the total estimated production of our entire farm products. For per capita expenditure for stimulating beverages for the year ending June 30, 1903, was $18.63, or $30.15 for each family of five persons. Of this the cost of tea, coffee and cocoa was $2.48, leaving $16.15 for alcoholic stimulants. England's drink bill still costs each inhabitant something over $10 a year, while the average for male citizens over 15 in Germany is $17.30.

TORNADO CAUSES RUIN

Plains Storm Sweeps Minnesota.
A tornado Wednesday afternoon did great damage to property, killed one man and injured many others in the vicinity of Wyoming and North Branch, small towns about fifty miles north of St. Paul, Minn. It is feared that other lives may have been lost, as the storm blew down telegraph and telephone wires and it is impossible to get into communication with outlying farming communities.

The storm seems to have formed near Lindstrom, Minn., and swept in a northeasterly direction, cutting a path about 600 yards wide for a distance of 27 miles.

Everything in its pathway was laid bare, even the grass being cut as though mowed with a scythe. Four men were in the direct path of the storm and took refuge under a bridge crossing a small stream, where the water was three feet deep. The wind took the bridge from over their heads, sucking all of the water out of the stream, leaving the bed perfectly dry. All four of the men were hurt, but none fatally.

The Engdahl residence on Pine Island, three miles from North Branch, was destroyed and Mr. Engdahl, Sr., is reported dead. The other members of the family received serious injuries. At Wyoming much damage was done. The house and barn of Henry Funk were completely destroyed and his wife and son severely injured.

Mrs. Funk and her 15-month-old babe in her arms when the storm came up, and though she tried to cling to it, it was blown away. Later it was found some distance away uninjured, but without a stitch of clothing on it.

One man, H. J. Halverson, was probably fatally injured, four were seriously injured, and the buildings were leveled by a tornado near Stoddard, Wis. The storm swept over LaCrosse. The hurricane centered apparently over and one-half miles east of Stoddard, Vernon County. It passed over Union Valley and Marion Center, striking Stoddard and Brimham most heavily.

Western Kansas was visited Wednesday afternoon, and night by violent storms, taking the form of tornadoes in some places, but no loss of life has been reported.

The traveler through a part of New Hampshire, where the stones seemed to be especially thick, stopped to comment to her driver on a man who was at work in a field the surface of which was little more than a mass of stones of all sizes and shapes.
"Yes, Jake's having a hard time of it," said the driver, who apparently knew every one in that region. "He's been at that field now for two years, off'n on. The wall all came out of the ground, as you might say, and you see there's still considerable material left to work on."
"I should think he'd be perfectly discouraged, poor man, to own such a piece of property," said the traveler.
"Oh, he doesn't own it, m'um, Jake doesn't," said the driver, hastily. "Jake isn't so poor as all that. It belongs to Squire Farnum, and he's hired Jake to clear it, that's all."

A CRITICAL PERIOD

Dangers and Pain of This Critical Period
Avoided by the Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Now many women realize that the most critical period in a woman's existence is the change of life, and that the anxiety felt by women as this time draws near is not without reason.

If her system is in a deranged condition, or she is predisposed to apoplexy or congestion of any organ, it is at this time likely to become active and, with a host of nervous irritations, make life a burden.

At this time, also, cancers and tumors are more liable to begin their destructive work. Such warning symptoms as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, dizziness, headache, dreading of impending evil, sounds in the ears, timidly, palpitation of the heart, agitate before the eyes, irregular menstruation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude are promptly heeded by intelligent women who are approaching the period of life when women's great changes may be expected.

We believe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the world's greatest remedy for women at this trying period.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a powerful and effective remedy for all the troubles of the female system. It is a natural and safe remedy, and it is the only one that will cure all the troubles of the female system.

Mrs. A. E. G. Ireland, of Chester, town, Md., in a letter to Mrs. Pinkham, says:

"I have been suffering with a displacement for years and was unable to do any work. I had a good deal of nervous prostration, and was very weak. I tried many remedies, but nothing did me any good. I then tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I am happy to say that it has cured me, and I have been able to do my work again."

For special advice regarding this important period, women are invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass. She is a doctor in law, and she will give you all the advice you need. Write to her at once, and she will send you a free copy of her book, "The Female Companion."

CONGRESS

The Senate Monday adjourned immediately upon receiving the announcement of Senator Gorman's death. No business was transacted, even the reading of the Journal being dispensed with. Under suspension of the rules a number of bills were passed by the House, including the following: Providing for the control and regulation of Niagara Falls; creating a collection district at Port Arthur, Texas; creating a United States District Court for China and prescribing its jurisdiction; providing for the survey and allotment of the lands embraced within the limits of the Blackfoot Indian Reservation in Montana; and the surplus lands, about 1,500,000 acres, to settlement; authorizing the construction of wharves, piers and other structures in Lake Michigan adjoining certain lands in Lake County, Indiana. Mr. Mann introduced a resolution making the pure food bill the order of business for the day.

General debate of two days. Announcement of the death of Senator Gorman was followed by adjournment.

The conference report on the railroad rate bill continued to be the leading subject before the Senate Wednesday. Mr. Spooner, the principal speaker, attacking the anti-trust provision as unjust. Other features were criticized by Messrs. Hale, Tillman, Bailey, McCumber, Teller, Lodge, Morgan, Piles, Pettus and Patterson. Senator Daniel made an ineffectual attempt to have reconsidered the vote by which the bill was passed.

Mr. Gorman's death was the subject of a general debate on the Senate floor. Mr. Gorman was a member of the Finance Committee and had so much to do with shaping that measure that his name is often given to it. In fact, it is frequently called the Wilson-Gorman tariff.

It was during Cleveland's last administration that a break occurred between the Democratic President and the leader of the party in the Senate.

In a speech which always will be remembered by those who heard it, Senator Gorman severely arraigned the President. To this opposition the defeat of Senator Gorman a few years later is attributed, although his party lost Cleveland in the silver campaign.

As soon as the Democrats regained control of the State he was at once re-elected to the Senate.

Condemning extravagance in public expenditures, Senator Gorman's pleas for economy voiced the views of his party that less money should be spent for big ships and more for river and harbor improvements.

KING PREDICTS ANOTHER BOMB.
Spanish Monarch Says He Will Be Victim.

That King Alfonso fully expects to be the victim of an assassin is indicated by his statement to E. W. Whitridge, the American envoy to the royal court. Referring to the bomb explosion the King said:

"Yes, unfortunately it was unsuccessful, but it will come again. It may be any time, perhaps tomorrow, perhaps within a few days, perhaps within a year, but it will come."

As the King made this statement at the palace he shrugged his shoulders and his face wore a look of calm resignation as he gave this forecast of the future.

Although he bore himself splendidly throughout the terrible experience, the courtiers confessed a flying scene as King Alfonso and Queen Victoria hurried within the castle after the attempt was made to assassinate them. For a moment Alfonso's nerves were completely unstrung and, turning to Queen Victoria, his dress, spattered with blood, he exclaimed:

"Why did I bring you to this country? It was wrong; you never should have come here."

Maryland Statesman Passes Away Suddenly at Washington.
Arthur F. Gorman, United States Senator from Maryland, died suddenly at his residence in Washington Monday morning. He was 61 years of age.

Senator Gorman has been ill for many months. He had shown some improvement lately. He died at his home, 1111 Massachusetts Avenue, N. W., at 10:15 a. m.

Senator Gorman was a member of the Finance Committee and had so much to do with shaping that measure that his name is often given to it. In fact, it is frequently called the Wilson-Gorman tariff.

It was during Cleveland's last administration that a break occurred between the Democratic President and the leader of the party in the Senate.

In a speech which always will be remembered by those who heard it, Senator Gorman severely arraigned the President. To this opposition the defeat of Senator Gorman a few years later is attributed, although his party lost Cleveland in the silver campaign.

As soon as the Democrats regained control of the State he was at once re-elected to the Senate.

Condemning extravagance in public expenditures, Senator Gorman's pleas for economy voiced the views of his party that less money should be spent for big ships and more for river and harbor improvements.

KING PREDICTS ANOTHER BOMB.
Spanish Monarch Says He Will Be Victim.

That King Alfonso fully expects to be the victim of an assassin is indicated by his statement to E. W. Whitridge, the American envoy to the royal court. Referring to the bomb explosion the King said:

"Yes, unfortunately it was unsuccessful, but it will come again. It may be any time, perhaps tomorrow, perhaps within a few days, perhaps within a year, but it will come."

As the King made this statement at the palace he shrugged his shoulders and his face wore a look of calm resignation as he gave this forecast of the future.

Although he bore himself splendidly throughout the terrible experience, the courtiers confessed a flying scene as King Alfonso and Queen Victoria hurried within the castle after the attempt was made to assassinate them. For a moment Alfonso's nerves were completely unstrung and, turning to Queen Victoria, his dress, spattered with blood, he exclaimed:

"Why did I bring you to this country? It was wrong; you never should have come here."

SCHOOLS AND COLLEGES
State Superintendent Dayhoff of Kansas has announced that a teacher's resignation cannot take effect until it is accepted by the school board.

Within a year the city of Union has enlarged the grounds around nine school buildings. The total cost was $23,240, or about $2,500 on the average to a building.

In Hohenheim, N. J., one of the features of each morning's exercises is a short interval of absolute silence. Beginning at the stroke of a bell and for five minutes, every teacher and pupil, and even the janitor, is held in perfect stillness.

The teachers like the plan.

State Superintendent W. T. Carrington of Missouri recommends the formation of industrial clubs among school children. In States having county supervisors, like Illinois and Nebraska, these clubs have been pushed, and attract national attention. Two Missouri counties having county supervision have done something along this line.

For five years school corn raising campaigns in Illinois have been quite general, and for the past two or three years Ohio, Iowa, Indiana, Nebraska, Missouri, and Kansas have been doing something along this line, but this year there will be twice as much interest as ever before unless all signs fail.

LIME WASTED WITH ECZEMA.

Suffered Untold Agonies—Doctor Said It Was the Worst Case—Wonderful Cure by Cuticura.

"I used the Cuticura Remedies for eczema. The doctor said it was the worst case he ever saw. It was on both limbs, from the knees to the ankles. We tried everything the doctors knew of, but the Cuticura Remedies did the most good. I was obliged to lie with my limbs higher than my head, for the pain was so terrible I could not walk. I suffered untold agonies. One limb wasted away a great deal smaller than the other. There was so much discharge from it, I found the Cuticura Remedies very soothing, and I still keep them in the house."

Sir John Franklin had made up his mind to discover the northwest passage. "I can't wait forever for the Panama canal," he said.

Shipping is the latest dispatch from Washington, and according to his dispatch, that there was another deadlock as to the question of the type of canal to be adopted, and that Senator Morgan was about to make another speech, he gave orders for the immediate fitting out of the expedition.

No Mystery at All.
"Speaking of strange and unaccountable experiences," remarked the man with the bulbous nose, "I am reminded of one that happened to a friend of mine in the summer of '93, while he was at the Columbian exposition. He was in the Fine Arts building, looking at the picture they called 'Breaching Home'—when he heard a voice behind him say distinctly:

"That's what is happening to your nose, over on the west side." He turned and looked to see who it was that spoke, and there was nobody near him."

"Is that 'nobody' asked the man with the fishy eye.

"No, the strangest part is to come. When he went home in the evening he found that his youngest brother had died with the hired girl and gone to St. Louis. He had taken place, too, at the exact moment when he heard the voice. What do you explain that? I'd like to know? Was it telepathy? Or what was it?"

"I dunno! Who tells that story?"

The man himself, the Stringham.

"O Stringham tells it, does he? Why, you gibbered, that's the explanation." Chicago Tribune.

AMID A SEA OF SHARKS.

Progress of Vessel Delayed by Myriads of the Monsters.
When a ship is brought to a standstill for twenty-four hours by a school of sharks that extends in all directions to the horizon and when the vessel stalls for the next twenty days amid nothing but sharks it is said by old salts that it promises to be a good season for fishing.

This is the story brought to Philadelphia by the captain of the American ship Babcock, from San Francisco, with a cargo of scrap iron. In fact, the captain hints at a tragedy, for, according to his story, the myriads of sharks left him in pursuit of another vessel.

The Babcock sailed from San Francisco Nov. 24. When in latitude 5.25 north, longitude 29 west, on Dec. 10, the crew became worried at the scores of sharks which began following the vessel. During the night the crew heard an awful splashing about the ship and with the morning light came the revelation that the ocean as far as the eye could see was covered with sharks.

The breeze fell off and what remained was not sufficient to send the vessel through the mass of fish. A strong wind came after the vessel had been stranded amid the sharks for twenty-four hours and slow headway was possible. The captain denies that the sharks tried to reach the deck by climbing upon the backs of one another.

For twenty days the sailors could see nothing but sharks. They were hundreds of miles from any land and were getting thoroughly frightened, when along comes another vessel. The sharks saw that the newcomer had the most men aboard and all went off in her trail, so that when New Year's day dawned the crew of the Babcock again saw a clear ocean. Philadelphia Inquirer.

Cettery.
"Young man," said the policeman, stepping in front of the automobile, "you will come along with me to the police station."

"What for?" demanded the chauffeur, who was sure he had not been traveling faster than six miles an hour.

"Exceeding the speed limit!" "Great Scott! Exceeding the speed limit! Why?"

"Yes, sir, in getting married without waiting for your divorce. You're wanted on a charge of bigamy."

Peruna for Kidney Trouble.
Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Ontario, Can., writes:
"I had not been well for about four years. I had kidney trouble and, in fact, felt badly nearly all the time. This summer I got so very bad I thought I would try Peruna, so I wrote to you and began at once to take Peruna."

"I took only two bottles of Peruna and one of Mannin, and now I feel better than I have for some time. I feel that Peruna and Mannin cured me and made a different woman of me altogether. I bless the day I picked up the little book and read of your Peruna."

It is the Business of the Kidneys to remove from the blood all poisons. But you cannot cure them by active all the time, else the system suffers. There are times when they need a little assistance.

Peruna is exactly the sort of a remedy that has saved many people from disaster by rendering the kidneys service at a time when they were not able to bear their own burdens.

Entered as second-class matter at the Postoffice at Grayling, Mich., under the Act of Congress of March 3, 1879.

GRAYLING, THURSDAY, JUNE 14.

Y. M. C. A. News.

On Friday, June 1st, Detroit completed the raising of over $422,000 in twenty-four days for a Young Men's Christian Association building. This was done under the leadership of Mr. J. L. Hudson and the two hundred business men associated with him upon the committee. Mr. Hudson himself contributed $50,000 in addition to devoting every day from 9:30 in the morning to 4:30 in the afternoon to the campaign. It was a splendid example of the unselfishness which permeates the heart of the average business man though it may lie dormant until something practical like the Young Men's Christian Association appeals to him. Other cities in this state are engaged in similar campaigns for Young Men's Christian Association buildings and a total investment of over one million dollars is contemplated by campaign already under way.

The building for the new Railroad Y. M. C. A. at the Pere Marquette yards near Grand Rapids was dedicated May 22. This building cost $15,000 and of this amount the Railroad Company contributed $10,000. Contracts have been let for a new building at Lansing costing approximately $60,000. B. E. Olds contributed the first $5,000 of this amount. At Jackson, a new building is in process of construction to cost $25,000 towards which Messrs. C. C. Bloomfield and L. H. Field have each contributed $5,000. Bay City has already raised $30,000 towards a $60,000 project. Mr. N. B. Bradley giving a site valued at $10,000. Port Huron has $15,000 pledged towards a $25,000 investment. Saginaw has $30,000 pledged on condition of $75,000 to be raised. Plans are under way at Marquette to raise $40,000 this summer and Calumet has started a canvass for $50,000.

Among the miners at Ishpeming, an Association is being organized this month, $10,000 being raised locally and $40,000 will be contributed by the mining companies for an Association building. Last Tuesday, the Durand Railroad Y. M. C. A. received an offer from the Grand Trunk R. R. of $5,000 for an Association building providing $2,500 more is raised locally. This will be done.

A handsome Association building was opened in Adrian last December, costing $40,000 and another one was dedicated in Ann Arbor in January, 1905, costing $45,000. Other buildings are located in the state at Grand Rapids, Kalamazoo, Battle Creek, Hancock and with the Railroad Y. M. C. A. buildings at Port Huron and West Detroit and the old buildings of the Detroit Association the total value of Association property in Michigan not including the buildings in process of erection aggregates over $700,000.

Mr. Clay H. Hollister, Cashier of the Old National Bank, Grand Rapids, is chairman of the State Executive Committee which is entrusted with the coordination, development and extension of the Association movement in this state. In addition to the above building movements in the larger cities, this committee has been developing a work in the small towns and country places known as County Work.

A County is organized by securing twenty of its leading business men as a County Committee. This County Committee employs a traveling county secretary who visits small groups of young men and boys and stimulates and upbuilds them in work for the betterment of their fellows.

Lenawee County has thus been organized for the past three years and this season the State Committee has employed Mr. C. L. Rowe as State County Work Secretary to investigate and develop other counties. He is at present investigating Allegan County.

Mr. Warner L. Rogers, who will graduate from the University of Michigan this year has been secured by the State Committee to develop the work in the colleges of the state and promote the religious work of the City Associations. Last month, Mr. J. L. Pauley was stationed at Port Brady at the Soo by the State Committee to organize a work among the U. S. Troops at that point. The commanding officer has granted an excellent suit of rooms for the Association in the Post Exchange building.

An important department of the Young Men's Christian Association work today is that for boys. Each local Association in addition to the work for the boys accomplished in its buildings, conducts a summer camp at some nearby lake or river. More than three hundred boys were in these local camps in Michigan last year. As a model for local camps, and a training school for their leaders, as well as to accommodate those from cities having no Associations, the State Executive Committee has established a State Camp for boys 12-16 years of age on the shores of Torch Lake in Antrim County. The prospectus of this camp has just been received and is an attractive booklet. Parents or boys interested can secure a copy by addressing L. E. Buell, State Secretary, Ann Arbor, Mich.

The Michigan Central R. R. Co. will have on Sunday, the 17th, new time table.

The Home.

A Department Dedicated Especially to Mothers and Wives and Designed to Heighten the Joys and Cement the Ties of the Whole Family Circle

A Continued Plea for the Purity and Sanctity of the American Home.

What makes you love one child and despise another? Hail the time it's the manner.

Let two young men go out into the world, equal in all respects except manner. Which secures most easily positions of honor and profit. Every observer knows.

Those who have children are charged with an awful responsibility. As to whether children shall be good or bad, depends much upon their training. Training should be the watch word of every thoughtful parent.

The courteous child is an ornament to the home and school and loved by both parent and teacher. It is not always so with the child who has offensive habits. How careful their ought parents to be with their children.

It's the little things that go to make or break the harmony of home life. Every single act of father, mother, son or daughter is a paragraph in the story of the home. The day's chapter begins with the first audible expression of a member of the household and closes, it is to be hoped, with a happy goodnight. All the chapters for a year make a volume, and the Complete Family History ends with the dreamless sleep of the last member.

LITTLE THINGS THAT TELL.

It's the little things that count most in this life. We are indifferent to hundreds of little things which would greatly increase the sum total of human happiness. And it would seem that these little things are more often neglected in the home than among strangers, neighbors and friends. Of course this is all wrong. Home should be above everything else. There all the little courtesies should be encouraged and sustained. Then it will be easy and natural for children and parents to do and say the right thing when away from home.

All the little expressions that indicate good breeding can not be suddenly put on for the occasion like a Sunday garment. To count for anything they must be easy and natural. Children who are not taught to say "if you please," "I thank you," "you are very kind," "I hate to trouble you," "if be your pardon," and use these and like expressions to their parents and among themselves at home, can not use them freely and naturally in the homes of others. If not accustomed to them by daily use they betray an embarrassing stiffness that is easily detected by even a casual observer. Parents can not be too careful of their children's expressions. Parents themselves furnish the example. They can not reasonably look for their children to say the nice things that are expected and required in this enlightened day unless they inculcate them by daily use. Uncouth and mortifying expressions of children society, church and school are reflections upon their fathers and mothers. A child is not blamed so much for a rude expression as is the parent. If the language of the child is coarse or vulgar, the hearer has a right to assume that such offensive language is used at home. The child is a reflection of home. Unconsciously but surely it tells the whole story. It innocently reveals a beautiful home culture or lamentable lack of it. It is well for the mother to admonish her boys and girls, when about to depart for a companion's party, to see how nicely they shall deport themselves, but it is vastly more important that they should have been preparing them years before by correct precept and example. Children who habitually use dignified and considerate language at home usually give their parents little concern when abroad. They say the right things just as naturally as untrained children say the wrong ones.

Observing teachers recognize this fact and are wont to say, show me the child and I will show you the home. As is the child, so is the home. The intelligent teacher puts this knowledge to good use. The more he sees the child and studies its expressions, the more he knows of its home life. Every day the child mirrors to the intelligent teacher some additional information of family relations, expressions and conditions. The impression is good or bad, just as the family vernacular is good or bad. Now careful, then, ought parents to be that the expressions of their sons and daughters shall be so civil and so considerate as to make a lasting impression for good. Equal or greater care must be given to the actions of children. The action of children are naturally graceful. They will always be graceful if not perverted. This natural grace should be the substructure of their manners. The boy who gracefully removes his hat when addressed by a lady on the street or when he enters another's home, creates a good impression. But this manly habit must be observed at home. If he enters his own home without removing his hat or cap, he will be very likely to do so when he passes the threshold of a neighbor. If he should stand in the light or his sister, drums with his fingers upon the chair or table, puts his feet upon his mother's chair, blows his nose at the table, neglects to give his seat to his elders, to rise when guests are entering or retiring from the room, or violates the hundred and one established customs of good breeding at home, how could you expect him to do otherwise when he goes into company?

Again we say that as parents we can not be too careful about the little things at home. We would not have parents too exacting, but we would have them know that they can not have well-bred sons and daughters without intelligent, determined and persistent care. Nor must the parent be discouraged. It is not enough to tell a thing, or even to set a good example. The manners to be taught must be practiced until they become a firmly established habit. Precept and example are both essential, but application is absolutely imperative. Every violation of good manners should be courteously pointed out, the noteworthy observations of good manners praised. If we would not fail to criticize, we would not fail to commend.

These little things tell. They make the respected girl and boy, the polished lady and gentleman. With them we are prepared to go out and win our way to popular favor in the world; without them, we are under a social ban from which there is no escape.

Moonlight on Lake Erie.

The passengers on D. & B. Line witnessed a Glorious Sight.

The moonlight scene on Lake Erie is sublime. At twilight as the sun, like a golden ball of fire, gradually descends from view in the western horizon, the moon rises in its stateliness, at first modestly spreading its mellow light and, growing bolder, bursts forth in one pure sheen of grandeur.

Detailed descriptions of the steamers Eastern States and Western States would be tedious. Possibly it may be abbreviated by saying that these new boats are not only the largest and latest but the best on any fresh water in the world. Happily Wedded.

The wedding of Miss Ethel Phelps, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Phelps, to Frank Canfield of Detroit was solemnized at the sheriff's residence in this city last Saturday evening in the presence of about sixty guests. The ceremony was performed by Rev. F. O. O'Meara of Trinity church, the impressive ring ceremony being used. The bride was attended by Miss Anna Canfield as bridesmaid and the groom was supported by Ray Phelps. Miss Myrtle Mjilken acted as maid of honor, Lucile Birdall and Nina Sablin as ribbon bearers, and Florence Brundage and Doris Everhart as ring bearers.

The house decorations were very pretty, particularly the room in which the ceremony was performed, where a large bell swung from the ceiling under which the bride and groom were made man and wife.

After the ceremony, an elaborate wedding supper was served in the dining room. Many handsome and useful presents were bestowed upon the bride by her host of well wishing friends.

The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Canfield and two sons, Chas. and Grant of Bay City, Miss Anna Canfield of Grayling, Mr. and Mrs. John McCollough of Bay City, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Jerome of Grayling, Mr. and Mrs. F. G. Bell and daughter Oula, of Rose City, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Aikman of Beaver Lake, Mrs. Lottie Willobee and daughter Iza of Grand Rapids, Mrs. Rouie White-Collins of Munising and Mrs. Anna DeKalb of Battle Creek.

The party took the night train for Detroit where a home all ready for occupancy awaited them. West Branch Herald-Times.

Letters and personal assurances have come to Governor Warner from every county in the state and from the different sections of most of the counties, from republicans who voted against him two years ago and who this year intend not only to vote for him but to cordially work for his election. Their party faith and party zeal have been strengthened by Governor Warner's courageous course in seeking first the interest of the people and the best good of the state in his actions on all questions that have come before him.

Practical railroad managers, those who are giving their time to legitimate railroad affairs rather than to stock schemes, declared that no harm will come to their business through the recent rate regulating legislation. And that they believe what they say is shown by the fact that more steel rails have been ordered for railroad extensions and railroad improvements during recent weeks than the rail mills of the United States can turn out in a year. The searchlight of publicity fearlessly directed will probably be as helpful to the owners of legitimate railroad stock as it gives promise of being so to life insurance policy holders and the other beneficiaries of recent investigations.

Grayling vs. Cadillac.

Covers of the national sport received their money's worth on our new ball field Tuesday afternoon when we lost to Cadillac by a score of 6 to 3.

Cadillac base ball team an aggregation of salaried professional, picked up from all over the state, arrived in our city Monday night fresh from two overwhelming victories at Cheboygan.

At 3:30 o'clock the ball was started rolling, and from then until the last man was called out, it was a continuous round of pleasure.

As the score will show, Grayling played excellent ball, hitting the opposing pitcher a great and plenty of times, but failing to connect with the sphere at critical times left us without a score till the last inning.

Cadillac by bunching their hits obtained three runs; the other three were obtained through errors.

The main excitement came in the last half of the ninth, with a now or never look, Sloan put a nice single over 3rd base, stole second on Schmidt's out, stole third and on Nolan's two bagger, Sloan brought in the first score for Grayling. A wild throw to second gave Nolan third and a wild throw to third brought him in for the second score, with one man out Reagan singled, stole second and scored on Leskies hit through first.

The grand stand went wild, Leskies was caught at second and Jones fled out, retiring the side and ending one of the prettiest games ever played on our grounds.

We cannot give our boys too much credit, because, for a bunch of amateurs we feel they can't be beaten anywhere in this part of the state. They play ball from the beginning to the end of a game, and we may feel proud that they held the opposing team to so close a score.

Following is the score by innings: 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 R H E Grayling 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 3 2 23 6 Cadillac 1 2 0 0 0 0 0 1 6 11 3 Batteries—Grayling, Jones, Reagan, Cadillac, Yelle, Spicer.

SOME EDUCATED GRUNTERS

Pigs That Have Acquired a Degree of Intelligence Truly Astonishing.

A young friend of my acquaintance at Kennebunkport, Me., has a couple of trained pigs which are believed to be the most intelligent animals of the kind in the state. He takes them up and drives them the same as steers, says a writer in the Associated Sunday Magazine.

Charles F. Holder, who through his power over all kinds of animals has attracted the notice of psychologists from many institutions, declares that the hog has intelligence fully equal to that of any other animal, except man, and a disposition singularly tractable and docile when treated with kindness.

He has trained a group of grunners, and that he cannot make them do can hardly be mentioned. These are not blooded, sleek pedigreed swine, but are the rough, ugly, friendless, wandering kind, against whom is every man's hand. They have been trained to separate, at a certain command, into two squads—soldiers, Spanish and American. There is a stone fort, over which the Spanish flag is seen to float. An officer of the American forces appears to order an advance. The fort is stormed, the flag falls, the dead and wounded are carried out, the stars and stripes are run up, guns are fired, and everything about, in such a scene is transacted with facility.

Mr. Holder drives a team of racing hogs at good speed over the country roads.

About 1815 a London man created a sensation by driving a four-in-hand of pigs through the streets; and 30 years later an old farmer caused much amusement to a great crowd in the market place of St. Albans by entering it in a chaise drawn by four trotting hogs.

There have also been sporting pigs. An old account of a black one which had taken one of the royal persons in the New Forest, broke to come, and to back and stand. Within a fortnight she would lead and point partridges or rabbits, and her training was much favored by the abundance of both. She daily over, and in a few weeks would have birds that had run as well as best pointer; nay, her nose was sure to the best pointer.

As on the clear water rivers of salmon Columbia learn to dive after fish, young diving on the bottom of the streams, and the interesting may be witnessed of a female diving for a salmon, and having obtained it, taking it ashore for her little ones.

COAXING THE AUTOMOBILE

Philosophic Farmer Gives His Ideas About the Invention of the Machine.

An automobile stood in front of a house supply station over in Jersey a few days ago, and of course, usual crowd assembled to take a look at the show. Among the spectators, says the Philadelphia Evening Telegraph, was an old farmer, who walked all around the machine, and intently watched every movement of the chauffeur.

As soon as the gasoline was procured and stowed away the chauffeur turned the crank to start the engine, and a moment later the auto was humping down the pike at a pace that made the country constables sit up and take notice. It was then that the philosopher appeared on the scene, and in a few minutes he was seated on the seat of the machine.

"Them automobiles is great inventions all right," he remarked to a bystander, "but their gezer what got 'em up had to take a tip from us layseers on how to make their blamed things go, jes the same."

"Put me wise," said the party addressed. "I fall to catch your meaning."

"Waal," rejoined the farmer, with his smile still beaming, "when any of us heekers has got an old cow what gits got contrary an' won't go through a gate or in a barn door, we jes twist her tail a couple o' turns, an' on she hustles."

Pope's Golden Rose

The Golden Rose with which the pope is presenting Princess Ena of Battenberg on the occasion of her marriage to the king of Spain, which is the highest honor the pope can confer on a Catholic princess, is a mimic plant of pure gold in a golden pot whereon are emblazoned the papal arms. It has leaves, buds and flowers, the leaves being set with small jewels in imitation of dewdrops. In the center flower is a tiny crucifix in which is contained a small palm-leaf blessed by the pope.

What John Paul Said

After the great fight in which John Paul Jones in the Bonhomme Richard made splinters and shreds of the British vessel Serapis, the English government generously decided that, though vanquished beyond a question, the captain of the lost vessel had behaved with becoming bravery and deserved promotion to the rank of commodore. John Paul Jones heard of this promotion and its cause and said: "Well, by George, if I ever meet that chap again I'll make him an admiral."

CLOSE STUDY OF VOLCANO

Peril Greater Than That Encountered by the Soldier Is Confronted.

In stoking so long to his observatory close to the summit of Vesuvius, Prof. Matteucci gives a remarkable proof of what? He voluntarily remains in peril probably greater than is encountered by the soldier who leads a forlorn hope, and certainly greater than that of participation in any ordinary battle, says the New York Times. His danger, too, takes a form from which even the most courageous could be excused from shrinking, for at any moment he may be exposed to the direct action of the most powerful of terrestrial forces, and the very ground under his feet may instantly crumble and drop him into a fiery abyss that is the reality of theological imaginations. Is he risking the martyrdom of science, or merely that of the scientific curiosity? In other words, is his course justified by the prospect of gaining from close inspection of the volcano new and valuable knowledge of the cataclysmic action going on within it? Nothing in the dispatches constantly telegraphed by him to Naples very clearly indicates that he is seeing anything more than is visible to those observing the eruption from a greater distance and in comparative safety, while it is certain that much visible to them is invisible to him. The picture as a whole is concealed from the man in the midst of the whirling ashes, and he has announced that his instruments for the measurement of seismic disturbances have been displaced by the constant convulsions to which they have been subjected. And yet Prof. Matteucci and his American assistant have remained coolly, or at least calmly, at their posts, and beyond any question they have utilized in some way and to some degree opportunities that never came before to scientists as well equipped as they for understanding and recording the tremendous events of a great volcanic eruption. It is from something more than idle or even from scientific curiosity that they are staking their lives on the outcome of successive minutes, any one of which may be their last, if they escape they will have the material for a paper such as has never appeared in the "Transactions" of any society, and he is pessimistic indeed who does not hope that what they learn by braving the mountain's rage will prove to be worth the frightful risk involved in getting it.

AN INSTRUCTED PRISONER

So Thoroughly Drilled He Put It On to the Lawyer Who Cleared Him.

A New York lawyer once had to defend a man named Marshall, charged with larceny, and against whom there was very strong evidence. Before the trial the lawyer went to his client and told him that his only chance of escape was in a plea of insanity, and he advised him to play the larceny, and to answer all questions put to him with the word "spoons." The day of the trial came on and Marshall took his place in the dock, pale, haggard and wild-looking.

"Guilty or not guilty?" asked the clerk.

"Spoons!" drawled the prisoner, with a blank stare.

"Come, plead 'guilty' or 'not guilty,'" repeated the clerk.

"Spoons!" was the only reply.

"Prisoner, will you answer the question put to you, or do you want to be punished for contempt?" asked the judge.

"Spoons!" bawled the prisoner, still unmoved.

At this point the counsel for the prisoner interfered and told the court that his client was not in a condition to be out on trial, as he was evidently not responsible for his actions, and it was an outrage on a free citizen, etc.

"Do you understand what is said?" asked the judge, addressing the prisoner.

"Spoons!" was his reply, in wild accents.

It was evident that the man was crazy and the judge ordered him discharged. He was taken in charge by his friends who were with him and left the court with them. His lawyer followed them and congratulated him on his escape, suggesting that it might be a good idea to pay him his fee. His client stared at him with blank amazement, and moved away with the simple remark: "Spoons!"

Poles of Paper

Serviceable telegraph poles can, it is found, be constructed of paper. Such poles are made of paper pulp, in which borax, tallow, etc., are mixed in small quantities. The pulp is cast in a mold with a core in the center, and forms a hollow rod of the desired length. The paper poles are said to be lighter and stronger than those of wood, and to be unaffected by the sun, rain, dampness or any of the other causes which shorten the life of a wooden pole.

SHYEST PEOPLE EVER KNOWN.

Kubus of Sumatra Never Talk With a Stranger.

There is a very singular race of people in Sumatra, the Kubus, who are too timorous and shy to mix with the other races of the island, and dwell in the recesses of the forests.

They are looked on as inferiors by the Malays, and though to be little better than beasts, such is their shyness that they will never willingly face a stranger.

Their trade with the Malays is consequently carried on in a strange manner. The trader announces his arrival by beating a gong, and he then retreats. The Kubus approach, put their forest treasures on the ground, beat a gong, and retreat.

The trader returns, and lays his commodities down in quantities sufficient, as he thinks, for the purchase of the goods on sale. Then he retreats, and the Kubus reappear and consider the bargain.

And so, after more withdrawals and approaches and gong beatings, the respective parties come to an understanding, and carry off independently their respective gains.

The Kubus live on snakes, grubs, fruits and the flesh of any deer or birds they can slay. They are skillful spearmen, and throw stones with marvelous accuracy.—Stray Stories.

SLEEP REQUIRED BY CHILDREN

Ten Hours Necessary for the Growing Youngster.

Oliver Wendell Holmes said that a child upon awakening in the morning from a healthful sleep in a bad humor, needed a spanking. He thought it very beneficial, promoting a good circulation of the blood; but he added that a child who was unreasonable and willful after a busy day was simply tired and should be put to bed.

Nature is the genuine healer and sleep the true restorer of all our powers. Parents who realize this can save themselves many anxious moments, many heartaches, many doctor bills and establish habits of regular living that will bring forth good results through a long line of offspring.

Generations to come. Every child requires at least ten hours of sleep, and it is a good practice for him to continue sleeping the full ten hours all through the school life. Work would be better and youthfulness prolonged; many nervous tendencies and diseases would be wiped out and clearer, brighter, mentally would be maintained.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Bottles

Ancient bottles of glass, stone and metal have been found in many parts of Europe, Asia and Africa. Perfume bottles of glass have been discovered in great numbers in the tombs of the ancient Egyptians. Many bottles, tumblers and other drinking vessels have been dug from the ruins of Pompeii. The most common bottle of the ancients, however, was of leather, the skin of a calf, goat or ox being taken off the carcass with as few cuts as possible and made into a receptacle for holding water or wine. The largest glass bottle ever blown was made at Leith, in Scotland, in 1747-48. Its capacity was two hogsheads.—Chicago American.

Oysters as a Nerve Cure

Over in France, says What to Eat, there has been discovered what is called the oyster cure for nervousness. It consists in eating all the oysters a person can consume to the exclusion of other foods until the cure is effected. The theory is that in nervous disorders an excessive amount of phosphorus is eliminated from the system. This loss can be compensated by taking food containing a large amount of phosphorus. It is said a patient taking this cure can eat oysters fresh from the sea at the rate of about six dozen a day.

Government Whitewash

Government whitewash is made by taking half a bushel of lime in boiling water, keeping it covered during the process; then strain and add a peck of salt dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice put in boiling water and boiled to a thin paste; one-half pound of Spanish whitening, and a pound of clear glue dissolved in warm water. Mix well together and let the mixture stand for several days. Keep the wash thus prepared in a kettle or portable furnace, and when using have it as hot as possible.

How One Girl Found a Husband

All pretty girls traveling are not advised to follow the example set by the heroine of this true story.—Last week Miss Droop of Washington was married to a young merchant of Bremen after she had journeyed far to find the lady of her love. Two years ago Miss Droop, with friends, was traveling from Bremen to Berlin when a handsome man entered the car. He proceeded to read a German paper. She said to another girl: "How fine looking he is. I wouldn't mind being married to a German if I could get such a handsome one." She spoke in English, and the young man sat with a stolid countenance, as if he couldn't understand a word. Really, he knew English thoroughly. The marriage is the sequel.

Mountains Had Not Moved

The story is told that when Judge William Rogers was chairman of the school committee in Methuen, Mass., one examination day he went around questioning pupils of the middle grade. He asked a boy named Rock where the Rocky mountains were. The boy answered correctly, but failed to be promoted that term. The following year the judge asked the same question. Rock replied: "The same place they were last year."

THE CUTTER OF TO-DAY

There was a time when the artistic designer, the clever, skilled Journeyman tailor sought the exclusive field, now they seek the manufacturer with a record; the clothing with a name. The public and not the individual, now receives the benefit of the ingenious Designer's Cutting.

The science of clothes making has swept past the old sweat-shop methods, like the express flying past the old stage coach; it's clothing with brains to-day—clothing with character to it and CLOTHCRAFT is largely responsible for this bettered clothing condition—a condition brought about by the determination to prove the wisdom and profit of wearing high grade ready-for-service clothing.

CLOTHCRAFT garments are to-day universally recognized as good clothes without the burden of "good prices."

DIFFERENT KIND OF PET.

Handsome Young Woman Had Something Better Than Dogs to Love.

When the thin woman in the long gray mink fur drove in the subway car opposite the fat woman holding a bright little Scotch terrier, it could be seen at once that they had points of common interest, and that these points of common interest consisted of dogs, rotates the New York Press.

"What a dear little fellow he is," chirped the thin woman.

"Isn't he dear?" cooed the fat woman, smuggling her pet so closely that he had to snuff for breath.

"Mine is a French poodle," answered the thin woman. "I hear those gray terriers are coming into style, though."

"Yes, they're all the rage," said the fat woman. "I had to give up fifty for Sandy."

A handsome young woman who occupied the seat by the thin woman was an interested listener to the colloquy. She was good-looking enough to attract attention anywhere, and she looked as if she loved everything that was worth loving in this world, including dogs. She leaned over and gave Sandy a head-on affectionate pat.

"Sandy tried to lick her gloved hand," said the thin woman.

"You love dogs, too?" said the fat woman.

"Oh, yes," was the reply, "who could help it?"

"What kind is yours?" came the eager query.

"Mine? Oh, I haven't any. Mine is a baby."

And the fat woman and the thin woman raised their brows, turned up their noses and grew coldly silent, just as if some one had said something to shock their sense of modesty.

Consideration

"Now, Mr. Sausage," said the fashionable lady to the butcher, "won't you take a ticket for our concert?"

"I don't think so," replied Mr. Sausage.

"It's to be quite a fashionable affair, I assure you. All the best people of the town will be there."

"I know," replied the butcher, "but you see, if I went I would see so many people owing me money, for meat that I wouldn't enjoy the thing at all."—Stray Stories.

World's Oldest Tree

The oldest tree in the world is said to be the famous dragon tree of Tenbriffe, which is estimated to be from 1,000 to 6,000 years of age. This wonder of the plant world was 70 feet or more in height until the year 1819, when during a terrific storm, one of the large branches was blown off. A similar storm in 1867 stripped the trunk of its remaining branches, and left it standing alone.
